CHANGING INAUGURATION DAY. No Valid Reason Why April 30 Should Not Be Chosen. From the Philadelphia Inquirer.

The movement to change the time for inaugurating Presidents from March 4 to April 30 ought to succeed unless, indeed, a later date be chosen. The present date is apt to be raw and gusty, with snow or rain or both. One President, the elder Harrison, died from the effects of a cold contracted while delivering his speech. If the total number of cases of pneumonia. fatal and otherwise, arising out of attendance on these ceremonies could be ascertained the figures would be appalling.

There are few persons who know why March 4 is the present date, and most of them probably think the Constitution provides it. On the contrary, it was a mere routine piece of legislation that fixed it. After eleven states had ratified the Constitution, the moribund Congress of the con-federation had to provide for the new government going into effect. It chose the first Wednesday in January for the election (legislatures in every case choosing the electors), the first Wednesday in February for the meeting of electors to choose the President and the first Wednesday in March for the inauguration. The latter day fell on March 4, but Washington was not present to take up his work. He, of course, knew of his election, but he took his time in proceeding to New York, the then seat of government, and the inauguration did not take place until April 30, which is the date now suggested for the change, and probably for the reason that Washington was then first inducted into office.

It will be noted that Washington served nearly two months less than eight years. Jefferson, Madison and Monroe served eight years, but Lincoln and McKinley were assassinated in the first year of their were assassinated in the first year of their second terms. Grant served eight years and one day, beating all records. Hayes was not inaugurated until the 5th of March, the 4th falling on Sunday. It would be a wise provision, perhaps, to have the inauguration take place on a certain day of the week rather than on a fixed date, because it would greatly convenience those in attendance on the ceremonies and those in attendance on the ceremonies and would remove any doubt as to who is President on a Sunday after a term has ex-In the case of Grant just referred to, that might have been a very important matter. While the dispute over Hayes' election was in progress, radical democratic congressmen threatened to prevent the final announcement of the contest if all disputed votes were counted for Hayes. It was intended to have Tilden take the oath on Sunday and then the House would have proceeded to elect him according to the constitutional provisions.

Now that transportation facilities are increased and fare is cheap increasing numbers will want to see the inaugural pageants and the date should be changed to accommodate the probable better weather accommodate the probable better weather

TO BEAUTIFY WASHINGTON. The Only Capital Which Can Be Made an Ideal City.

From the New York Press. It is well that a comprehensive plan for the beautification of Washington has been laid out, even if, according to House economists, the Senate's method of authorizing the same was decidedly irregular. The political capital of the United States is the one community of the sort in the world which government can work its highest will and do its artistic best to make absolutely ideal. Not London, nor Paris, nor Berlin can be modeled according to the plans of the architect and landscape gardener. Washington

Undoubtedly it will be in course of time, as this $10,000,000 plan or some other proposal supplementary to L'Enfant's great original is worked out. Even were the investment not to be justified by the attraction of the wealth and culture which ought yet to supply the country with something more than a merely political capital on the Potomac, the nation would willingly bear the expense. Americans wish the rest of their seat of government lifted to the serene level of that majestic dome, which somehow symbolizes so impressively a federal, continental republic.

For the benefit of the present generation, however, it is to be hoped that Congress will take in hand Pennsylvania avenue from the White House to the Capitol. Public and private buildings of a desultory character have greatly improved the appearance of this thoroughfare. But it is plain that mere evolution cannot be trusted to carry the adornment of the street much Undoubtedly it will be in course of time, to carry the adornment of the street much further. There are, especially at the Capitol end of the avenue, rows of unsightly buildings which would degrade a much meaner street. Nothing of this ignoble sort should be left. Where there is no fine private or public structure there should be sort should be lett. Where there is no fine private or public structure there should be a park or plaza. To this end the government should acquire every plot of "unimproved", real estate on both sides of the street. There should never another inauguration procession pass between a ruin and

Jos. C. McElroy, Postmaster, 214 A st. s.e. H. N. Couden, Chaplain, 32 B st. n.e. Consider the Ant.

From the Cleveland Leader. Lord Avebury declares that ants that maintain their sobriety make a great distinction in their treatment of the intoxicated stranger and the fellow-citizen who has succumbed to his blandishments. He inebriated fifty ants, twenty-five from one nest and twenty-five from another, and put them all into the nest from which one lot had been taken. The inhabitants at once took the helpless strangers and threw them into the water; while those who were cli-izens of the nest were carried tenderly away into remote corners to recover at leisure.
